Netcentric systems Awarded 2010 Oracle Titan Award in Oracle's Sun
SPARC Server Solution Category

Recognized for developing tightly integrated 'SQL to Silicon' database acceleration solution

San Francisco, California - September 20, 2010 - Netcentric systems, a Platinum partner in the Oracle PartnerNetwork (OPN) Specialized program, announced today that it received the 2010 Titan Award in the Sun SPARC server solution category. Netcentric is the first Oracle partner to receive top honors for a solution based on the combined Oracle-Sun technology stack.

The Oracle Titan Awards are given by Oracle to its leading partners for innovative solutions and business achievements. These awards recognize partner excellence in a number of categories, including sales, marketing, and solution development.

"Netcentric can provide customers with differentiated database acceleration solutions that are prime examples of Oracle's 'Software-Hardware-Complete' value proposition," said Tom Wagner, Oracle Group Vice President, North America Hardware Alliances and Channels. "Behind this success is Netcentric's deep knowledge of the database, operating system, data management and hardware layers of the Oracle technology stack."

Netcentric's solution for Oracle-Sun hardware was developed for a financial services firm and implemented across multiple US offices. The solution achieved the right balance of cost and performance while simplifying management of the company's business-critical securities pricing database systems. As a result, the client has dramatically improved its query response times and service levels, allowing them to expand their data feed service capabilities while significantly reducing operating costs for the business.
